

Brown Pelicans

“Who are we now that we are involved with brown pelicans?”

This booth displays several facsimile artifacts to help the visitor appreciate the brown pelican. The emphasis is focused particularly on threats to this intriguing seabird, such as oil spills, trash, and in the past, the pesticide, DDT. To help the visitor investigate not only the threats, but also what we can do to protect brown pelicans, the installation offers things that kids will love and a game that all ages will love.... But we must not tell you because it is a secret; the way to find out is to come to the science festival!
