

How is our own vanity harming our environment?

Has our vanity is doing far more than making us beautiful?

How is our own vanity harming our environment? This booth features many fun things that can teach you about how our own vanity is harming our environment. You would be surprised on how selfish we are, even though it's only our human nature. When you visit this booth, you'll learn of multiple ways that you can help the environment from our “beauty” products. You will be able to help put together and build a rug out of recycled t-shirts, as well as see first-hand the ingredients in things like, shampoo, and face washes that are harming us.